

IDEAS MATTER FAIR : S4YT (Scholarship For Your Thoughts)

SCHOLARSHIP FUNDING TERMS & CONDITIONS

1. Any students currently in grade 9-12 (and home-schooled students of an equivalent age) are eligible for participation and receipt of awards of funding toward productive plans. Students fill out the on-line student registration form prior to or during the event and receive a student ID # that will appear on all responses submitted to scholarship prompts.
2. A productive plan is defined as enrollment in any program, camp, session, class or other opportunity which in some way supports education or professional or skills building experience.
3. Students are encouraged to submit one answer to as many questions as they would like. Students may submit only one answer per question, and may win only one award per question.
4. Each student submitted answer will automatically include the registered student ID # assigned to that student. Any specific mention of a student's name or identifying information in a submitted response will immediately disqualify that submission.
5. Scholarship awards may be used toward any productive plan which supports education, or the pursuit of educational or professional experiences*.
6. Every productive plan must be approved by building-U.
7. Scholarship awards must be used within 4 years of receipt of award (i.e. 2020 awards must be applied to a productive plan prior to 2024).
8. Students must complete and return the official productive plan form (will be emailed to students) prior to building-U's release of scholarship award.
9. Scholarship awards will be paid directly to the applicable organization or institution.
10. Scholarship amount must be applied in its entirety to one program's tuition, required fees or supplies (or a combination thereof as applied to a single program) as charged by the hosting organization or institution (i.e. a single award cannot be split between multiple organizations).
11. Should a student win multiple awards, those awards may be combined for use toward a single tuition or cost, or used independently towards different tuitions or costs.
12. Limitation of Liability: Participation in any part of the S4YT event releases building-U from any liability with respect to participation in the event itself, or use of any prize won in pursuit of productive plans, including but not limited to the quality of, content of, or any other circumstances surrounding such a plan. Student registration includes the acknowledgment that student names and basic information may be shared with sponsors awarding scholarships.
13. Building-U reserves the right to a final decision regarding any dispute considering the judging process, awarding, or application of funds, and the right to modify these or any regulations surrounding the S4YT event at any time.

*Students should be aware of, and do their own research around, the IRS definition of a scholarship. If an award is put toward a productive plan that falls outside of that definition, they may be required to list the award as taxable income. For more information, see IRS Tax Topic No. 421 or other reputable sources.

In certain circumstances, the costs surrounding a specific productive plan may not fit well with this requirement. In these circumstances, building-U may work with a student to find a solution.
